Parts of this document are executable. The CAN.dy membership system (github.com/candy-dance/candy-dance) implements Article 10 (dues) and Article 20 (electronic acknowledgment) as Postgres triggers and constraints, so that the rules cannot be bypassed by application code.

Editing either Article means the code must be revisited:

- Article 10 → `supabase/migrations/0002_projects_and_dues.sql`
- Article 20 → `supabase/migrations/0004_documents_and_acknowledgments.sql`

`docs/bylaws-issues.md` in that repo records where this document is ambiguous, silent, or behind what the Team actually does. Read it before amending.

Version numbers count adopted versions, not drafts. Earlier drafts were informally numbered up to v5, but none was ever signed, so nothing was in force. Whatever is adopted first is v1. The next number is issued only when a revision is actually adopted — Article 20.2 ties every acknowledgment to a specific version, and a participant cannot meaningfully agree to a draft.
